DETAILED ACTION

Information Disclosure Statement

The IDSes filed 4/1/04, 11/29/05 and 3/9/06 have all been considered and placed of record. The initialed copies are attached herewith.

Specification

The title of the invention is not descriptive. A new title is required that is clearly indicative of the invention to which the claims are directed.

The disclosure should be carefully reviewed to ensure that any and all grammatical, idiomatic, and spelling or other minor errors are corrected.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Frannhagen (US 5,990,659). The reference discloses, inter alia, a portable device 12 capable of using the battery pack 10. The device has a processor 18 for reading and processing the intrinsic battery info from the “wireless tag” imbedded within the battery pack 10. The tag is interpreted to include everything, i.e. 30, 34, 54 etc., within the pack except the battery cells. The tag has all the battery info including the battery chemistry, voltage, current, state of charge etc. (col 3. lines 45-55; col 4, lines 50-60). The processor 18 can request the info on the remaining charge of the battery and the capacity indicator 54 within the tag translates the info to the sequence generator 34. The sequence generator 34 converts the info and sends it through the wires 14, 16 to the processor 18 to alert the user as to the state of the battery (col 4, line 60 to col 5, line 5). See also figure 1.

Claims 1-5 and 12-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Rohde (US 6,005,367). The reference discloses a smart battery 10 functions very similarly to the Frannhagen's battery and further includes a power control algorithm to limit the consumption of power based on the "used" data of the battery (col 4, lines 40-50).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 6-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over one of Frannhagen (US 5,990,659) and Rohde (US 6,005,367). . The reference fails to disclose the specific location of the tag within the battery pack. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have placed the tag within the center portion of the pack, since it has been held that rearranging parts of an invention involves only routine skill in the art. In re Japikse, 86 USPQ 70.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
